The Research Shop is one of five programs through which the Community Engaged Scholarship Institute (CESI) fulfills its mandate to bring together community and campus skills and resources to directly support and carry out community-engaged scholarship and develop others' capacities to do so. At the Research Shop, staff and graduate students work with local and regional organizations to design and carry out projects that address community research priorities.

These posters highlight ten research projects completed by the Research Shop in collaboration with a variety of community partners from Guelph and Wellington.
